Location: Bethel, Alaska

“...This is my second year teaching primary-age special education. My day is spent teaching reading, math, social skills, and in my first year, desperately trying to catch on to non-verbal communication that is highly used in this culture. I have had to learn speech/language services on the fly. In most school districts, these services are provided by a Speech Language Pathologist, but our district struggles to find SLPs that are willing to come out here, so that is a service I had to pick up...”
